“Juneteenth” also referred to as Freedom Day commemorates the emancipation of African Americans who had been enslaved in the United States. It was on this date in 1865 that the Union Army officially occupied the state of Texas ending one of the last bastions of slavery in the United States.

Experience specially focused programs throughout the day and learn more about the history of Juneteenth and emancipation in the Low Country.

Middleton Place Foundation’s mission is to connect people with the past, inspiring a deeper understanding of ourselves and each other through our shared American history.
